

Brussels, 14th June 2011

SPREAD Sustainable Lifestyles 2050 is an EC funded European platform running from January 2011 to December 2012. Over 400 societal stakeholders – from business, research, policy and civil society – will participate in the development of a vision for sustainable lifestyles in 2050. This process will result in a roadmap for strategic action for policy makers and will deliver innovative ideas for all stakeholders involved towards more sustainable lifestyles in Europe. It will address the challenges of reducing current levels of energy, transport and resource use while at the same time improving health and quality of life of an ageing European society. Societal innovation and significant changes in behaviours and lifestyles are vital to achieve long-term economic prosperity for all within the bio-capacity of our planet. Knowledge on sustainable lifestyles is scattered and so are sustainable project initiatives. The aim is to identify existing knowledge, promising practices and experience in the area of healthy lifestyles and sustainable development. The findings and results from the analysis will be presented, discussed and validated by a wide range of stakeholders. The knowledge and recommendations generated in the project will be included in a comprehensive research agenda for the European Commission (DG RESEARCH).

Today, the SPREAD workshop “Linking energy issues with lifestyles” will explore the linkages between energy consumption and sustainable lifestyles:

- What are the potential opportunities and challenges for ‘low-energy lifestyles’ in the domains of living, moving, consuming and society?
- What are promising policy initiatives already existing and which are still needed to support low-energy lifestyles?
- What are the implications for our common future?

The discussions will feed into the SPREAD Sustainable Lifestyles 2050 project: a process that will result in a roadmap for strategic action for policy makers and will deliver innovative ideas for business, research and civil society organisations, to enable sustainable lifestyles across European society.

EuroHealthNet is a not-for-profit network of regional and national agencies responsible and accountable for health promotion, public health and disease prevention in Europe. Its aim is to improve the health of European citizens by striving for a healthier Europe with greater health equity between and within countries. EuroHealthNet does that by supporting projects and policy development together with its members and the EU institutions; by exchanging information and by communication in and beyond its network.
